

About This Property

The Mount Pisgah Conservation Area is one of the largest conservation areas in this part of the state. It connects to an extensive network of conserved lands that stretch west to the Wachusett Reservoir and north into New Hampshire, creating a much-needed corridor for wildlife.

SVT continues to work with local landowners and municipalities to protect additional lands on and around Mount Pisgah.

Please note: Some of the land on Mount Pisgah is privately owned. Please stay on the marked trails, respect posted rules, and do not enter lands marked as private.

Features of Note

- The extensive wildlife corridor in this region can bring unusual visitors to Mount Pisgah, including bobcat, black bear, and moose. In addition, Howard Brook flows through the area and is home to native brook trout.
- Much of Mount Pisgah was once farmland, and the Sparrow and Mentzer trails were named for two dairy farmers. Other trails named for past residents of the area include Tyler and Bennett.
- The Mentzer Trail is the main nature path and crosses Berlin Road Trail, which was an old cart path, as evidenced by its greater width. From the Mentzer Trail, you can see the remains of the stone foundation of a home where a hermit once lived.
- At the Tyler junction, you can cross over bare rocks to the North View, from which you may see the Boston skyline on a clear day.
- From the North View, follow the Tyler Trail to the South View, which overlooks Hudson. At the South View, glacial striations can be seen in the bedrock. These deep scratches show the direction of the glacier's path as it scoured its way through the area.
